The Induction and Refresher Scheme for GPs

Seminars

- Week and content
- No seminar on part 1 of General Practice in England

The induction and refresher scheme is part of the mandatory training for doctors in General Practice. It covers essential knowledge and skills required for primary care. The program is designed to ensure that doctors are up to date with the latest developments in general practice. For more information, please visit the official website or contact your local health board.