Oxford Deanery currently has a vacancy for a General Practice Academic Senior Registrar (ST4) extension, with an interest in medical education, commencing in August 2009. The position will be based in the new ‘South Bar House’ building in Banbury, comprising West Bar Surgery and Horsefair Surgery, which are expanding their teaching and training activity, and will take the form of a 12-month extension, starting at ST4 level.

The position will be attached to the Academic Department of the University of Oxford, meaning that full access to the University academic support programme will be available. Details of the Department can be found at www.primarycare.ox.ac.uk. The role will require involvement in both the Oxford and Banbury GP day-release courses, specifically to provide support for the ST1 and ST2 teaching programmes, as well as involvement in foundation and undergraduate teaching – in the practice, and in the departments (for medical students). Part of the Fellowship will involve working towards a Certificate of Medical Education.

The successful candidate will have a balance of 40% clinical (working across both practices in the new building) and 60% academic and teaching.

The successful candidate will:

- Be a current GP registrar (ST3), coming up to ST4 level, with successful completion of nMRCGP AKT and CSA modules
- Have a special interest in medical education
- Have demonstrated an excellent level of progress and development throughout their general practice training to-date
